NATIONAL TRAIN DAY MAY 12th

National Train Day was a creation of AMTRAK in an attempt to promote the advantages of travel by rail and the rich history of trains in the U.S. It is held on the Saturday closest to May 10, the anniversary of driving of the Golden spike in Promontory, Utah and the completion of the first transcontinental railroad in the U.S. Unfortunately, the major events AMTRAK promoted in large cities like Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington, DC and Philadelphia were canceled after 2015 due to cutbacks in AMTRAK's budget. However, there are many other cities throughout the nation that are celebrating our great rail system and history.

The Temple Railroad and Heritage Museum at 315 W. Avenue B in Temple TX is hosting a day of train festivities in association with Amtrak and CentraMod. There will be several train cars outside the Santa Fe Depot to explore as well as hand and motor car rides. There will be an Amtrak drawing and food trucks and plenty for kids to do. CentraMod will present "12 Hours at Temple" with model trains and train watching events.

Toledo is jumping the gun a bit, holding their event a little early on May 5. It will be held at Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Plaza (Amtrak Station Building) 415 Emerald Ave. Toledo, OH. Hopefully there will be railcar displays from the Ann Arbor Railroad and the Norfolk Southern. There will be model trains, food vendors, local and national passenger rail advocacy and rail safety groups and over 40 exhibitors.

Also on May 5 are cab tours at the Lebanon, OH Station and rides on the Lebanon Mason Monroe Railroad through the country side of Warren County in Southwestern, Ohio.

There are several more around the country. Take a look in your area and celebrate National Train Day!
